■ JOINT VENTURE ■ BOOSTS PRIVATE INDUSTRY

*University involvement helps Case IH plant retool
to create hundreds of new jobs*

A joint venture between UW-Stout and private industry is now under way, with the promise of creating hundreds of jobs in central Wisconsin.

The Case IH project, finalized last fall, calls for up to 20 staff members, eight graduate students and 40 undergraduate students during the duration of the project to help the firm consolidate manufacturing of all heavy equipment at its plant in Wausau.

"The project will establish Stout's credibility as a university that can really provide assistance to manufacturing in the state," said John Entorf, associate dean of the School of Industry and Technology.

Stout representatives, who have been working on the project throughout the year and will continue to do so for the next two years, will help Case IH move six new product lines from out of state to the Wausau plant.

Larry Schneider, director of Stout's applied technology program and Case IH project director, works at the plant in Wausau Mondays through Thursdays and returns to Stout on Fridays. He is pleased with progress made. "The Case people are impressed with the work the Stout team has done and the Stout people are happy to have this opportunity," he said.

Staff members and students have been assisting Case IH in plant layout, design and layout of assembly operations, material analysis, inventory control, installation and streamlining of flexible machine cells, and automating process plans and standards for all new products, Entorf said.

Schneider said staff members working with Case IH have been involved in special projects, including manufacturing simulation; implementation of "just-in-time" manufacturing, which improves efficiency by decreasing inventory; and supervising training.

Entorf said the project benefits the university by drawing together resources from throughout the institution.

For Case IH, the project is supplying the plant with the needed assistance it may not have been able to get in other ways.

Case IH required considerable financial assistance but requests for funding through the state's Technology Development Fund and Quick Start Fund were turned down.

At Stout's request, $392,300 from the UW System employee benefit account was used to fund the first year. Funding proposals for the next two years are being developed.

Not only did Case IH get financial assistance from Stout, it also received engineering assistance from what some consider to be one of the best sources in the state.

Schneider said Stout is unique in that it is able to provide help in all aspects of the manufacturing process.

As a result, Case IH will have improved manufacturing techniques, hundreds of new jobs will be created in the Wausau area and Stout students will profit through the practical experience. Some of these students are earning up to six credits per term under Stout's cooperative education program, alternating semesters between the plant and the classroom.

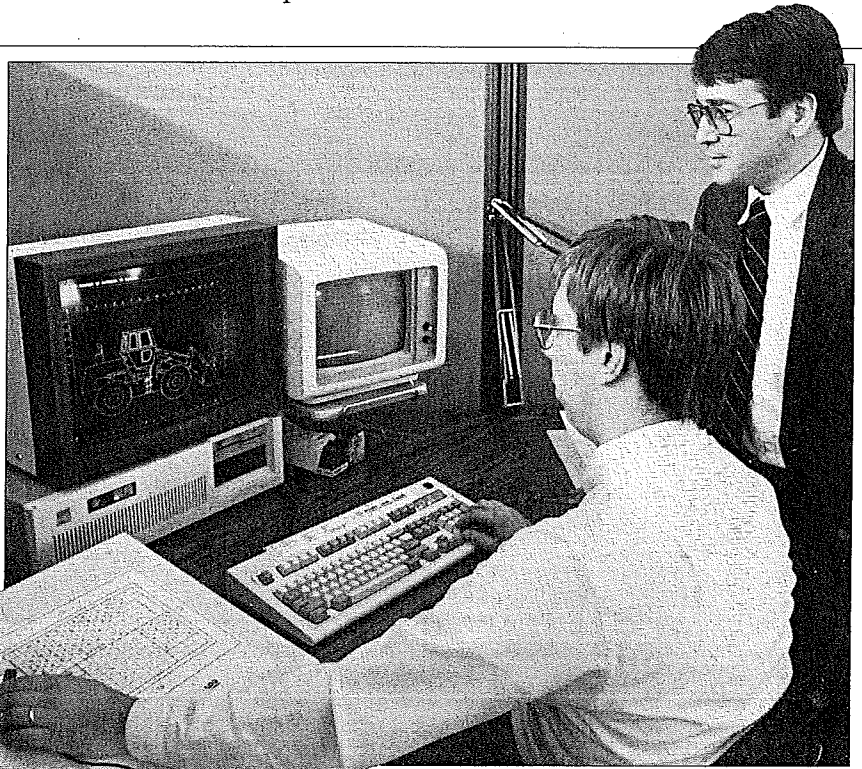

This joint effort has drawn praise, along with a call for similar efforts. Susan Trebach of the Milwaukee Sentinel said, "What remains is for Stout and Case IH personnel to prove that this public-private marriage can work, and that the Wisconsin economy will be better for it."

State Rep. Richard Shoemaker, D-Menomonie, said, "The state can and will work with companies committed to Wisconsin. Stout and other segments of the university system have a wealth of expertise which can and should be used to help industries be productive and profitable." □

SPRING HAS CAMPUS BLOOMING

Magnificent foliage continues through summer and fall

Each spring the Stout campus comes alive with beautiful flowers and plantings. And as the season progresses to summer and early fall, magnificent foliage can continue to be seen throughout the university's 120 acres.

All of this is the result of careful planning and hard work during the past few years by those who tend university grounds.

Marilyn Sample, grounds supervisor, said numerous flower beds have been added to the campus. Those beds increased from about 2,400 square feet in 1981 to 8,750 square feet last year. Sample also said by using a combination of flower types such as spring and flowering bulbs, annuals and perennials a continuous display of color can be seen in beds throughout the growing season.

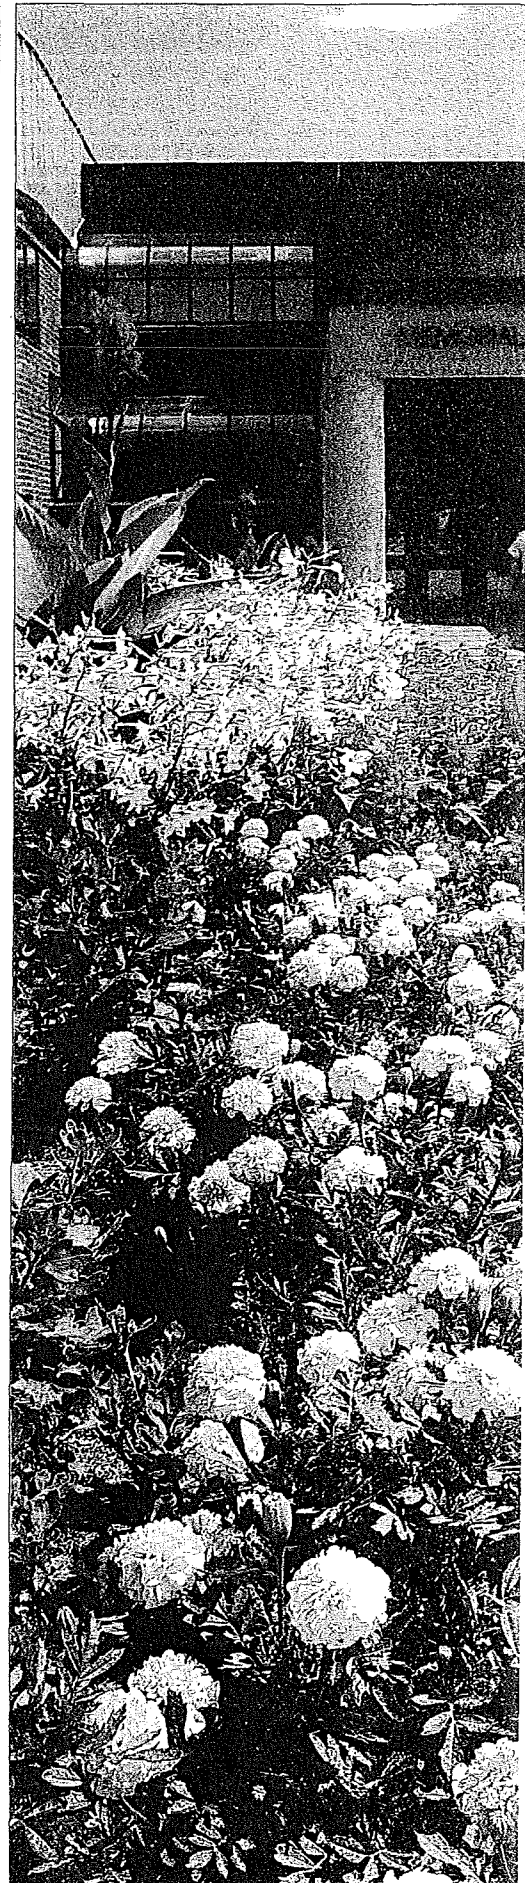

"Of particular interest to plant connoisseurs are certain of the many perennials donated by an alumnus, the late Wilmer Flory," Sample said. "Mr. Flory was a perennial enthusiast who hybridized a number of plants including hostas and daylilies. He also donated a great number of daffodils, peonies, Siberian iris and primrose." She added that these donations have been incorporated into a number of flower and shrub beds, including large triangular flower beds at the north side of the Applied Arts building and northeast of the Home Economics Building.

Sample said that the plantings are part of the overall effort to improve the appearance of the campus. Another aspect of that effort is a Dutch elm abatement program in which more than 100 elm trees have been treated to prevent the spread of disease. "The success rate has been good, with only four losses due to disease," Sample said. In addition, about 100 new trees have been planted during the past five years to replace those that may eventually be lost. Species range from Kentucky coffee to hickory to gingko and from Swiss stone pine to white spruce to European larch, Sample said.

During the same time, numerous shrub plantings have been installed, some of them funded by students living in the residence halls.

Sample and staff members of the grounds maintenance department have improved maintenance of trees, shrubs and lawns on campus by upgrading equipment and providing additional training for personnel. "Operating efficiency has greatly improved," Sample said. "Consequently, more time has been available for improving normal maintenance practices." □

grounds crew
work at a variety of jobs that keep the campus beautiful*

Marilyn Sample studied horticulture, but her work consists of much more than arranging flowers. Her job includes landscaping, maintaining turf, caring for trees, removing snow and developing temporary parking lots. Sample is not an average horticulture grad. She is the grounds supervisor at UW-Stout.

Sample, who earned a bachelor's degree in agriculture with a specialty in ornamental horticulture from UW-Madison, is the only female grounds supervisor in the UW System.

"Normally if women are in horticulture, they're in garden centers or they're arranging flowers or working in greenhouses," she said. "It's geared that way in school."

Although Sample was lured into horticulture by the more traditional aspects of the field—she became interested from experiences in gardening and caring for houseplants—she said she was always hoping to use her skills a bit differently.

"I guess I had in the back of my mind a job similar to what I have now," she said. "Where I could do a variety of things from designing to actually getting outdoors and planting."

This unique use of an agricultural education is a fairly recent trend. Sample said because of an increasing level of expertise expected in groundskeeping, more and more companies and organizations are hiring grounds supervisors with advanced educations.

For example, Sample said during her five years at Stout, five schools in the UW System have hired new grounds supervisors and there are now only two supervisors in the system who do not hold degrees.

One look at Sample's responsibilities explains the need for such expertise. She supervises a crew of approximately 15 employees, and the majority of her responsibilities includes overseeing the planting and maintenance of the flowerbeds, shrubs, trees and turf. During the winter, she is busy supervising the snow removal operation, designing landscapes and ordering materials.

Each area requires considerable attention. For example, areas of overused turf such as worn footpaths between buildings need to be replanted every spring. The football field, practice fields and baseball field also need yearly replanting.

Winter brings its own problems, and one of them is ice control. Sample said salt is not good for plant material or concrete, but the sidewalks must be salted to prevent injuries.

Another winter problem is lack of space to put the snow. Sample said after a few snowfalls, the piles of snow around the parking lots have to be removed, but she has been forced to look for new dumping sites.

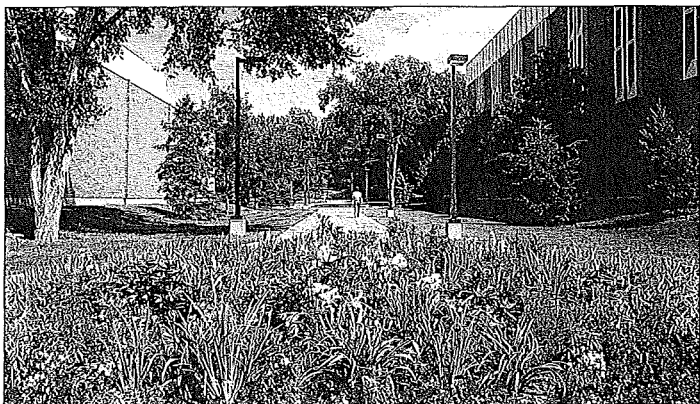

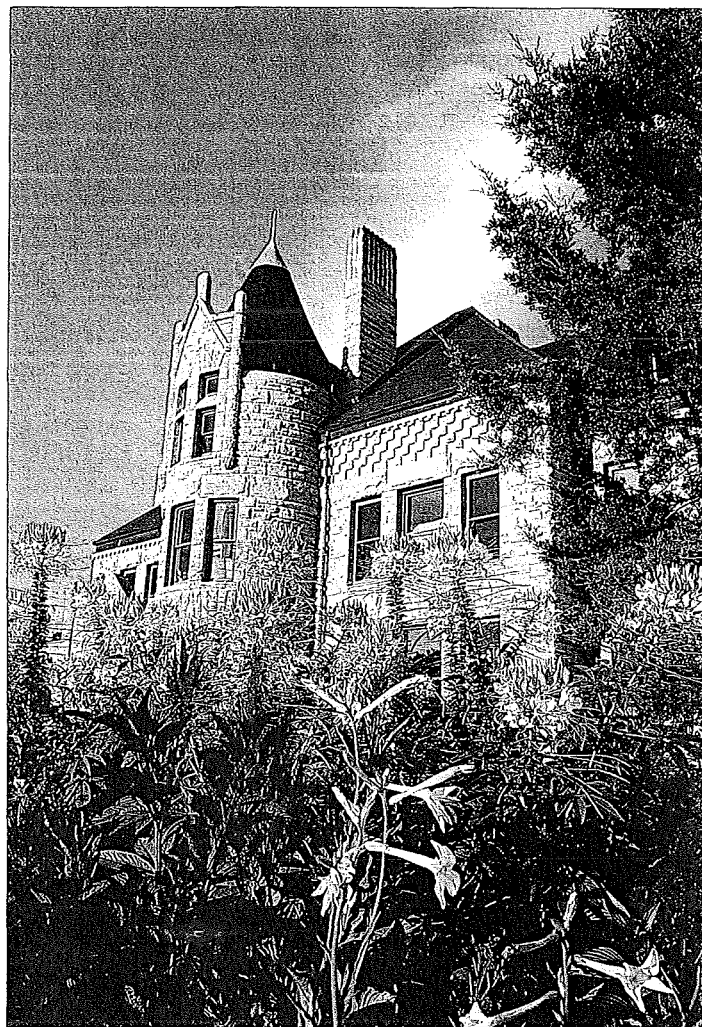

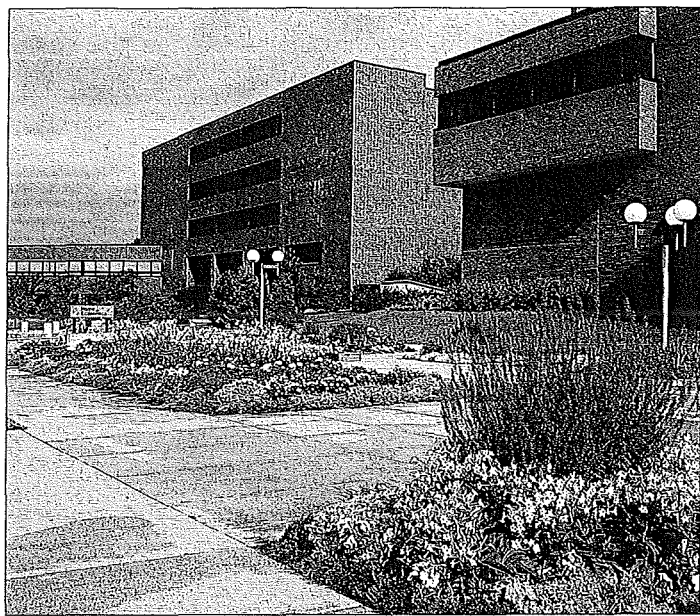

However, such varied obstacles do not discourage Sample. "The job is so challenging because there are so many different facets," she said.

Of all these different facets, Sample said her favorites are working with the annual and perennial flowers and with the woody ornamentals such as trees and shrubs. She said watching the landscape plants grow to maturity is one aspect of the job that is especially enjoyable.

"You see so much improvement from one year to the next as plants fill in and develop their true character," she said.

Sample said it's also rewarding to hear people compliment the work she and her crew do. "The people who work on the grounds, especially the flowerbeds, say not a day goes by that someone doesn't comment on how pretty everything is," she said.

Sample recently received a letter from a woman who attended summer school, and in the letter the woman perhaps best summed up the result of Sample's work. She said, "It made it such a pleasure to be on campus!" □

Wilmer Flory

Wilmer Flory '35 made a significant contribution to beautification of the Stout campus through gifts of bulbs and flowers. Flory, a resident of Logansport, Ind., died May 5 at age 90.

A native of Indiana, Flory completed his degree at Stout after attending a number of other universities throughout the upper Midwest. He came to Stout, primarily in the summers, in an effort to earn an industrial education degree.

After receiving that degree, he returned to his home in Logansport to teach industrial education for his entire professional life. However, throughout that lifetime Flory nurtured a love of flowers. His special interest was in daylilies, with an almost equal attraction to peonies, daffodils, hostas and iris.

Flory worked with his father during the depression, raising and planting daylilies on a nursery on the home farm. Many of those daylilies were eventually transplanted along various federal highways in northern Indiana as part of an early highway beautification project. Some of those daylilies still exist.

Flory's interest in flowers led him to hybridization, a process of cross-breeding various species of a flower to obtain a new variety. Various chemicals are available to assist in this process. When a new variety is produced, if it is good enough, it can eventually be introduced to the public through formal professional societies.

Flory was a founding member of the American Hemerocallis Society, a past president of the Indiana Daffodil Society and helped organize the Indiana Daylily Society. Through these organizations, he was able to introduce various hybrid plants which he had developed. Many of these flowers carry names of Flory family members, and continue to be sold through various catalog houses and bulb merchants.

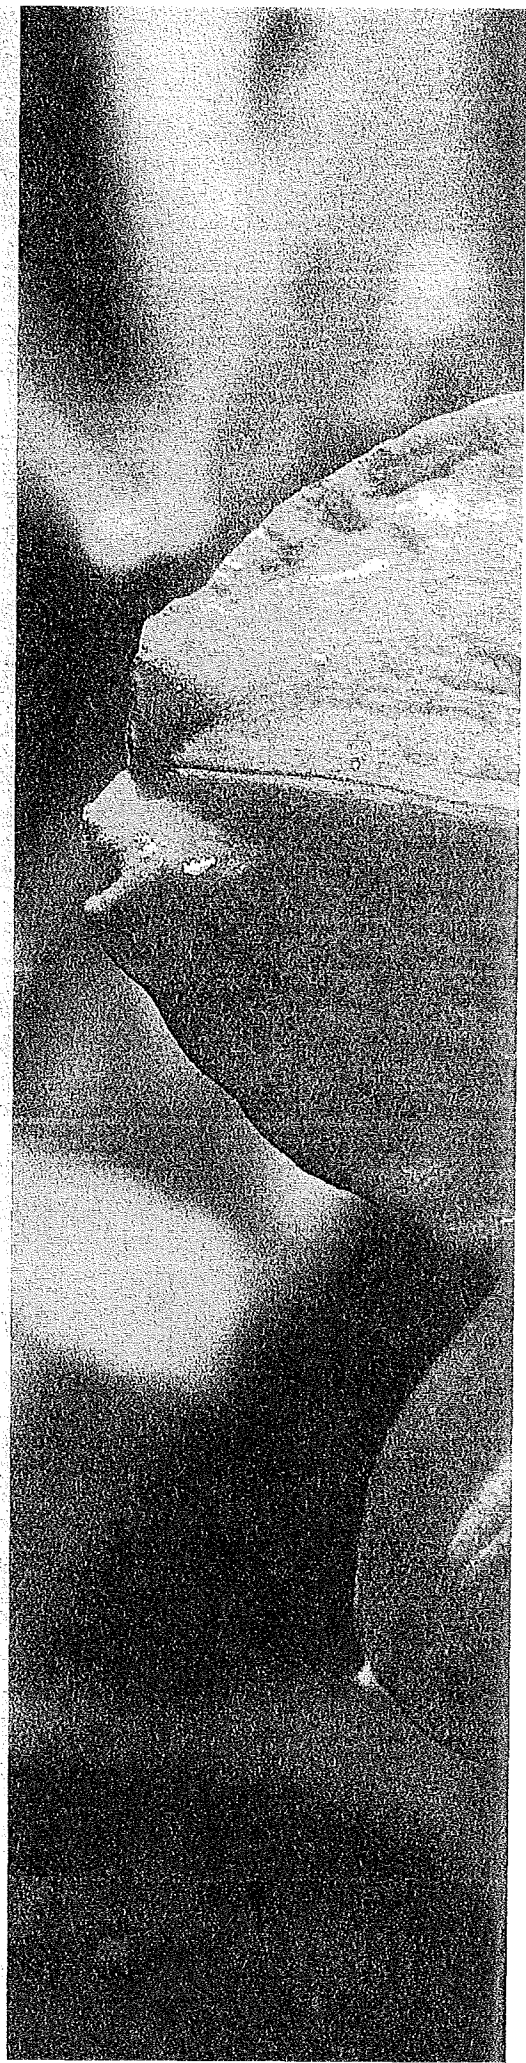

About four years ago, through conversations with the Stout Foundation office, Flory decided that he could best help his alma mater through gifts of various flowers and bulbs to beautify the campus. Thus began a relationship in which Flory sent thousands of bulbs and plants, all to be used around the Stout campus. Some of these bulbs retail through catalogs for more than $100 each. Therefore, the gift amounted to thousands of dollars worth of bulbs and flowers for Stout. Over those four years, it took four trips to Logansport by various Stout personnel to bring back these many thousands of plants.

"This is how I can leave a legacy to the institution which helped me gain a fine education that helped me all my life," said Flory during a conversation with Dave Williams, executive director of the Stout University Foundation. Flory credited Stout for helping him achieve an outstanding career in education and for enriching his life in many other ways.

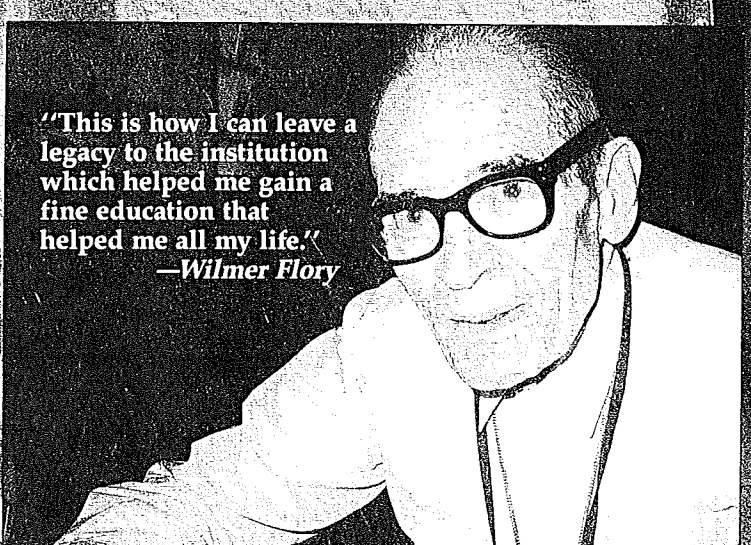

Unfortunately, Flory's health did not permit him to visit the campus he was helping to beautify after he began his donations. Through photographs, he was able to gain some idea of how important a role his floral gifts were playing in the project to make Stout an attractive place. Last spring, the university officially designated the area around the university's alumni house, Louis Smith Tainter House, as the Wilmer Flory Gardens. A formal dedication ceremony is planned for this spring, which Flory's daughter and other relatives will attend. All of the individual varieties hybridized by Flory will be displayed in beds surrounding the house.

Flory's generosity also extended to the city of Logansport, which named a park shelter after Flory and paid tribute to him after his death by flying flags in the city at half-staff for one week. In addition, a Wilmer Flory Scholarship Fund, established in his honor several years prior to his death, continued. The legacy Flory has provided the university will continue for years to come. His plants will multiply and be spread throughout the campus, making it a garden spot in the upper Midwest. □

Professors honored

Recipients of the first Dahlgren Professorships and Geo. A. Hormel Professorships at Stout have been named.

Receiving the two-year Dahlgren Professorships are Marvin Kufahl, materials and processes; Priscilla Huffman, early childhood education; Calvin Stoudt, counseling and psychological services; and George Nelson, biology.

The one-year Hormel Professorships have been awarded to Lee Smalley, industrial and marketing education; and Kenneth Heintz, apparel, textiles and design.

Vice Chancellor Wesley Face announced the recipients during a Faculty Development Conference.

Face said the Dahlgren Professorships are named in honor of the late Reinhold and Borghild Dahlgren, both early Stout graduates. The Dahlgrens left their entire estate to the university. Hormel Professorships are made possible through a three-year grant from the Austin, Minnesota-based company. The Dahlgren Professorships provide each recipient with $7,500 and the Hormel Professorships provide $5,000 for professional activities, conferences, supplies, clerical help and other services that support improvement of teaching.

The Professorships were obtained as part of a capital campaign by the Stout University Foundation Inc. Faculty and staff development were the highest priority of the Toward Century II campaign.

Recipients for each Professorship are selected based on their outstanding ability and promise for future development. □

Stout graduates still rating jobs

In what has been described as a "sluggish" period for employment, recent Stout graduates achieved a near record placement rate, according to the university's annual placement report.

The report said that 95.8 percent of the 1985-86 graduating class had been placed, mostly in jobs related to their majors at the university.

Robert Dahlke, director of Career Planning and Placement Services at Stout, said the report was compiled by a follow-up with all Stout graduates receiving a bachelor's degree during the reporting period.

Dahlke's staff was able to reach 93 percent of the class, a figure he described as "significantly high."

This year's placement rate is the third highest in the recent history of the university, where graduates generally show a placement rate of 90 percent or better. Only 1977-78 with a 96.1 percent rate and 1978-79 with a 95.9 percent rate topped the current figure. "The class did well in what is perceived as a flat market," Dahlke said.

Of those reporting being employed, 90 percent said they were working in fields directly in or related to their major courses of study.

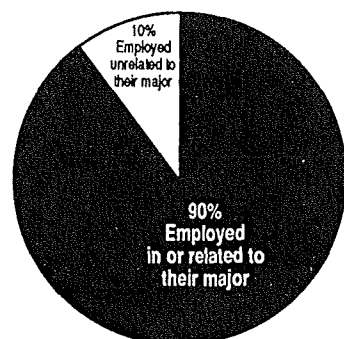

According to this year's report, 97.2 percent of the education majors were placed. "For business and industry programs, the overall placement rate was 95.5 percent," the report said. "Salaries for most programs showed increases from previous reports." □

by Pat Reisinger Alumni Director

When this magazine reaches your doorstep, Homecoming 1986 will seem like it occurred eons ago. However, it was a warm, sunny day for everyone to enjoy all of the activities designed for the weekend. The Blue Devils played the Stevens Point Pointers. Several other options were offered alumni and friends—Betty Mischeel's "Art to Wear" fashion show, the Louis Smith Tainter House open house, and tours of the Mabel Tainter Theater and the Wilson House. The classes of 1946, 1956, 1961, 1966 and 1971 were honored at the homecoming banquet. The class of 1961, their spouses and friends had the best attendance. More than 80 classmates came from around the country to celebrate their 25th class reunion. The Stout vocal jazz ensemble, under the direction of Patrick Liebergen, performed at the banquet. The 1986 alumni awards were presented. Mary Ann Spangler BS '58, MS '69 and Stuart A. Anderson, BS '35 received the Distinguished Alumni awards. Wenda Gail Schwoch '78, Barbara Maahs Yeast BS '72, MS '75, MS '76 and Gary Yeast BS '72, MS '75, MS '77 were recipients of the Outstanding Young Alumni awards. If you have alumni you wish to nominate for the 1987 awards, please call the Alumni office (715) 232-1151. The Alumni Association Board of Directors met that weekend. Scott Cabot BS '78, MS '79, Chicago, was elected president of the board; Ann Yurcisin MS '78, Ed.S '81, Menomonie, is the newly appointed president-elect, and Roger Sabota BS '64, Rhinelander, is the secretary-treasurer. Newly appointed members include John Postman BS '49, Steilacoom, Wash.; Pete Ptacek BS '79, MS '84, Prescott; and Lou Tiffany BS '76, Minneapolis. The three student positions were filled by Tina Grandt '88, Whitewater; Usman Ocholi '87, Nigeria; and Sherry Salm '87, Appleton. The board approved three travel programs for 1987 and reviewed the Stout Foundation strategic plan. The Alumni Association will organize a senior gift program and a parent's association under the Foundation's five year strategic plan. The Capital Campaign Toward Century II Alumni Victory Brunch was held. Warren Barberg '51, chair of the alumni campaign, applauded the alumni, and specifically, the volunteer leadership for their outstanding success in pledging more than $600,000 to the campaign. Chancellor Robert Swanson presented mementos to all of the campaign volunteers for their work in the successful campaign. With the generous contribution of Ruth Lindall Dawes BS '30, who stipulated that her capital campaign donation be restricted for use at the Louis Smith Tainter House, the house (formerly the Wilson House and Eichelberger) has been refurbished. Alumni who lived in the house when it was a dormitory may not recognize former rooms. The dining room has been completely remodeled. The living room has been decorated to allow socializing and to serve as a large meeting room when necessary. An official open house will be held next summer. The Alumni Association held gatherings in several areas recently: Milwaukee, Oct. 30, in conjunction with the Wisconsin Education Association; Houston, Nov. 8 with UW-Platteville; Phoenix, Nov. 12; and Dallas, Dec. 6. The Houston alumni met with the Platteville alumni to view the 1986 Platteville homecoming game. Graduates were asked to wear their school colors, T-shirts or sweatshirts, and to find their school mug and pennants. The following alumni were in attendance: Maurice Alswede '61, Robert Christianson '50, Julie Domek '82, Bill '81 and Julie Hedlund Fisher '81, John '73 and Ann Sailor Graf '73, Ronald Hull '65, Laura Johnson '73, Dennis Koepp '69, Paul Kunz '50, David '78 and Lynn Ehresman LaBonte '79, Terri Lewis '83, Cynthia Merde '84, Sue Nelson '82, Peter Schwartz '83, Ralph Stevens '60, Al Willett '78, Janeen Wittwer '83, Ronald '82 and Susan Hosto Wolf '83, Peter Young '84 and Carmen Illing '81. Chancellor Robert BS '49, MS '50 and Margaret 'Penny' Swanson '48 attended the Phoenix alumni gathering Nov. 12. Debra Huss Murphy '80 engineered the social at the Hilton Hotel. Thirty-five alumni, spouses and friends viewed the videotape campus tour and heard Chancellor Swanson give an update about the university. Those in attendance were Jay Budde '85, Jennifer Fossey '84, John and Gloria Gade Hardy 'BS '68, MS '79, Mary Hill '86, Glenn and Rhonda Engel Jordan '75, Ruth Jordan Dip. '12, Patti Knapp '84, Ed BS '39, MS '62 and Lillian Kriz, Price '32 and Jean Larson, Debra Huss Murphy '80, Jeannie O'Brien '84, Ted '36 and Elsa Pierson, Zeke '47 and Mary Ann Dodge Prust '47, Dick BS '41, MS '50 and Margaret 'Peggy' Coburn Trezona '46, and Howard BS '43, MS '48 and Phyllis Wagner Schwebke '42. Winners of Stout mementos were Mary Hill '86, farthest from home; Rhonda Jordan '75, most recently employed; Zeke '47 and Mary Ann Dodge Prust '47, residing in Arizona longest; Ed Kriz '39, most recent move to Arizona, and Margaret 'Peggy' Coburn Trezona '46, birthday. The Milwaukee area alumni officers initiated the first Parents' Night on Nov. 14. Sixty-five parents of freshmen and transfer students attended the social to meet Chancellor Robert Swanson; David Williams, Stout University Foundation Director; and Judy Spain, director of Residence Life. Milwaukee alumni officers, Kevin '80 and Mary Goplin Wilde '80 and Randall '79 and Ruth Kremer Pickering '80, served as official hosts for the gathering. Dallas alumni, spouses and friends joined the American Vocational Association conventioners for a Stout gathering Dec. 6, at the Loews Anatole Hotel. Approximately 175 people were greeted by former Chancellor William J. 'Bud' Mischeels '32 and Pat Wenner Reisinger BS '61, MS '67 who hosted the gathering and presented a short program. The program concluded with gifts to Gene Christiaansen '66, Helena, Mont., farthest from home; Don Bruhn '85, Dallas, Hank Heil '85, Arlington, Tex., and Dan Tambura '85, Fort Worth, Tex., most recent graduates; and Don Bruhn '85, most recent job. The golden anniversary classes of 1927 and 1937 will gather June 11 and 12. Classes on either side of the honored classes are invited to join graduates for two days of seminars and socializing on the Stout campus. Information will be at your doorstep by March 1. Please call us if you have any of the addresses or know of the whereabouts of the following missing class members: 1927 - Mildred Noke Amesbury, Harry Barta, Dorothy Berg, Stephen Bergin, John Bergstrom, Cyril Bunker, Oscar Carlson, Alice Dahner, Losia Davies, Alice Koher, Robert Donald, Samuel Hall, Norma Hancock, Alice Johnson, Ruth Chase Jones, Vick Langford, Esther Galusha MacMillan, Margaret McCready, Gordon McIntyre, Helen Strong Pearson, Loretta Quistorff, Tom Reilly, R. Gordon Robbe, Lucille Christopherson Shafer and Norveil Woodburn. 1937 - Carol Calgren, Herbert Cigard, Halford Cochrun, Sarah Peck Garnhart, Dorothy Lloyd Graf, Iva Mae Gross, Sister M. Ryperta Houser, Stanley Thomas Johnson, Rosemary Lulloff, Malcolm McCulloch, Vernon Nelson, Marcus Person, Barbara Sawyer, Harvey Waffle, William Winger and Marion Zierath. The fall phonathon focused on the annual fund. Twenty volunteers phoned alumni for two weeks. A thank you to all who have responded. Among the wonderful notes was discovered the composer of the Alma Mater. Olive Hylland Dixon '36 informed us that the Alma Mater was composed by Lillian Hylland Nottiness. She wrote the composition while attending the Stout Institute. Katherine Raab informed us that Oscar Raab '12, age 100, died October 20 in Ocean Grove, N.J. Oscar was an industrial arts teacher in Orange and Newark, N.J. He retired from teaching in 1950 and opened a furniture refinishing business. He was intent on celebrating his 100th birthday with the celebrated Statue of Liberty, and he succeeded with a party with friends and relatives. From Minneapolis comes a delightful article about Theresa Gutzke Burgess Dip. 14, age 94, who was honored in the 'South West Review' as a founding member of the Minnesota Dietetic Association. The Association was founded in 1918. She attended the Stout Institute and graduated as a certified dietitian in 1914. Three Stout graduates have been busy with new cookbooks. Mary Ann Spangler BS '58, MS '69 was the project coordinator of the NASCO cookbook 'Home Economists' Choice' just released by NASCO. As project coordinator she and her recipe-testing staff screened recipes, tested approximately 150 and provided a taste-test session for NASCO personnel. Stout alumni working on the cookbook project include Virginia Lathrope Brown '55, Marjo Mathey Green '67, Barbara Schmidt Nordberg '69, and Mary Jo Wimmer Downing '87. Deanna Howell House '61 has written her second cookbook, 'More House Specialties.' Deanna is on the staff of the Kalamazoo Vocational School. She teaches microwave foods classes plus writes a weekly column for the Kalamazoo paper. Mary Beth Jung '71, formerly of Oster Appliances and presently with Oscar Mayer, has published the 'One Burner Cookbook.' The recipes are timesaving recipes that require only 10 to 15 minutes of preparation. She converted some of her old-fashioned and gourmet favorites to single burner preparations and adapted some oven-baked classics to one burner specials. The university keeps track of you through its Alumni Association Records office. If you want to report an address change, one call does it. That's for all the mail you expect from the campus: alumni reunion notices, homecoming and research information. Call between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. central time, (715) 232-1151.
